

Make a nature crown

Have you ever wondered what it feels like to wear a royal crown?

A crown is a symbolic headdress worn by a monarch, which represents power, glory and honour. It is usually made of precious metals and jewels, but a crown doesn't have to be made using valuable materials. Let's use nature to create a crown instead!

You will need

Sturdy paper or card
Pencil
Glue
Sticky tape

What to do

1. Gather your own 'gems' to make a crown. While you are out walking, have a look around to see what natural items you can collect. You might find fallen leaves, flowers, lightweight twigs or seed cases. Gather a range of items and take them home to decorate your own crown. Check with an adult before picking flowers!
2. Ask somebody in your family to measure the circumference of your head and cut a strip of sturdy paper or card to the correct size, allowing an extra few centimetres at each end.
3. Arrange and stick your natural treasures onto the strip of paper and finish by taping it together to fit around your head.
